3 years out, London on track

By Stephen Wilson
ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

LONDON — This Olympic training went so well that the two star British athletes broke out in smiles.

The needle-nosed "Javelin" high-speed train carried officials, athletes and media from central London to the main site of the 2012 Olympics in 6 minutes, 45 seconds — smashing its scheduled target time of 7 minutes.

That's even faster than Michael Phelps and the rest of the U.S. 800 freestyle relay team swam at the Beijing Olympics while winning in 6:58.56. And the sleek blue-and-yellow train wasn't even clad in a body suit, although it probably could've used one to skate through the steady London showers.

Monday's test run came three years to the day when the 2012 Olympics will begin — and it was an important success for London organizers who have been concerned about transportation for the games.

Olympics Minister Tessa Jowell said the three-mile journey "bodes very well indeed" for 2012, when the train service is expected to transport up to 25,000 visitors per hour from St. Pancras International station to a central London to the Olympic Park in the Stratford area to the east.

"Ninety-seven percent of people who come to the Olympic Park will be traveling by public transport," Jowell said. "These will be the public transport games."

The train runs on a 140 mph line along the same route used by Eurostar trains from London to Paris and Brussels. Spectators arriving at the Stratford station will walk over a bridge into the park, where a run-down area is being turned into the showpiece complex.

The train journey began with London 2012 chairman Sebastian Coe, a former two-time Olympic gold medalist in the 1,500 meters, speaking to the passengers over the PA system.

"Hello, this is Seb Coe," he said. "The good news is that I am not your driver this morning. The bad news is that I have (two-time Olympic decathlon champion) Daley Thompson here who is. The train will depart as scheduled at 9:42 a.m."

The train sped through a long tunnel for most of the trip and pulled into the Stratford platform. Coe and the other VIPs then stepped off the train with big smiles after the journey went even faster than predicted.

"Today means pride, it means progress and it means excitement," Coe said later. "Pride that we've made such a good start and we've made such good progress and excitement because we are three years away from the opening ceremony. The competitor in me tells me that is just around the corner."

Coe and the other dignitaries — including 15-year-old Tom Daley, Britain's newly crowned world champion diver — toured the park site by buses, getting a firsthand look at what officials say is the biggest construction project in Europe.

Work is progressing on all the main venues in the park, including the Olympic Stadium, aquatics center, velodrome, media center and athletes' village. Most striking so far is the main 80,000-capacity stadium, whose external structure is already completed. The wave-shaped roof structure on the aquatics center is more than halfway finished.

Coe said the Olympics are on time and ahead of schedule in some cases, as well as on budget. Keeping the momentum going for the next three years is his biggest challenge.

"Everybody wakes up every morning focused on delivering a fantastic game to time and within budget," Coe said. "That's why we got up in the morning."

The British government's overall budget for the games is $15 billion. There is a shortage of private financing because of the recession, forcing the government to dip into a contingency fund to pay for the athletes' village and media center projects. Officials said $2.1 billion in reserve funds remain.

Coe said organizers have already raised $974 million from domestic sponsors — more than any previous host city — and are on their way to meeting an overall target of $1.1 billion.

About 4,000 construction workers are employed at the building site, which is peppered with cranes, trucks, bulldozers and other equipment.

Public Utilities Commission
Notice of Public Hearing to Adopt Rules

A public hearing will be held in Room 414, 4th Floor, State Capitol, Pierre, South Dakota, on August 10, 2009, at 1:30 p.m., to consider the adoption of proposed rules numbered 2009-250 through 2009-299.

The South Dakota Public Utilities Commission (Commission) is proposing to establish rules regarding pipeline safety. The effect of the proposed rules is to establish uniform procedures and standards for pipeline safety inspections and the enforcement of pipeline safety standards. The rules set forth the procedures and standards regarding inspections of pipeline facilities that are subject to the jurisdiction of the Commission. The rules provide the procedures and obligations regarding the handling of possible violations of pipeline safety standards. The rules also address the procedures and standards for reporting and investigating incidents. It is intended that the proposed rules will result in the Commission, such as a release of gas that causes personal injury or property damage. The proposed rules also require a pipeline operator to notify the Commission of the safe of a jurisdictional pipeline facility, set forth notice requirements for Commission line construction, and require the submission to the Commission of an annual report the pipeline operator is currently required to submit to the federal authorities.

The reason for the rules is to set forth the obligations of pipeline operators and the Commission and the procedures that will be followed regarding the pipeline safety program. The rules are also designed to make the inspection and enforcement process more transparent and understandable.

Persons interested in presenting data, opinions, and arguments for or against the proposed rules may do so by appearing in person at the hearing or by sending them to the South Dakota Public Utilities Commission, State Capitol, 500 East Capitol, Pierre, South Dakota 57501-5070. Material used by mail must reach the Public Utilities Commission by August 28, 2009, to be considered.

After the hearing, the Commission will consider all written and oral comments it receives on the proposed rules. The Commission may modify or amend a proposed rule at the time to include or exclude matters that are described in this notice.

Notice is further given to individuals with disabilities that this hearing is being held in a physically accessible place. Please notify the Public Utilities Commission at least 48 hours before the public hearing if you have special needs for which special arrangements must be made. The telephone number for making special arrangements is (605) 773-3201.

Copies of the proposed rules may be obtained without charge from the South Dakota Public Utilities Commission, State Capitol, 500 East Capitol, Pierre, SD 57501-5070. The proposed rules may also be found on the Public Utilities Commission's home page at the following address: <http://www.sdpublicutilities.com/reading/2009-250-299>

Published at the price of $1.50.
