It's a trend that has alarmed federal prosecutors in North and South Dakota. A man on the Fort Berthold Indian Reservation in North Dakota was recently sentenced to 45 years in prison for coercing women into prostitution in oilfield communities. Two men in South Dakota have received life sentences for human trafficking cases in Sioux Falls.

Heitkamp said estimates show that more than 100,000 minors in the U.S. are forced into sex trafficking every year. Children are 13 years old, on average, when they are forced to become prostitutes, she said.

Native American girls and women often are targets of human traffickers, Heitkamp and Purdon said.

 South Dakota has a couple of unique sex trafficking stages with the annual Sturgis Motorcycle Rally and a pheasant hunting season that attracts hundreds of outdoors enthusiasts from around the country.

Lifeline is a federal benefit program that makes monthly telephone service more affordable for eligible households. Eligible households may receive one benefit consisting of either one wireless OR one home telephone. Households may not receive the Lifeline benefit from more than one telephone provider. A household is defined, for purposes of the Lifeline program, as any individual or group of individuals who live together at the same address and share income and expenses. Lifeline is a non-transferable benefit and may not be transferred to any other person, even if he or she is eligible. Consumers who make false statements in order to obtain the benefit, or who violate the one-per-household requirement can lose their Lifeline benefit and may be prosecuted by the United States government.

Lifeline is a federal benefit program that makes monthly telephone service more affordable for eligible households. Eligible households may receive one benefit consisting of either one wireless OR one home telephone. Households may not receive the Lifeline benefit from more than one telephone provider. A household is defined, for purposes of the Lifeline program, as any individual or group of individuals who live together at the same address and share income and expenses. Lifeline is a non-transferable benefit and may not be transferred to any other person, even if he or she is eligible. Consumers who make false statements in order to obtain the benefit, or who violate the one-per-household requirement can lose their Lifeline benefit and may be prosecuted by the United States government.
