dirty energy even more dangerous for frontline communities. Facilities equipped with carbon capture technology use fossil fuel to get the same energy output, resulting in increased emissions of toxic and hazardous pollutants, like fine es even more risks on communities from CO2 pipelines and storage. Transporting, injecting, and storing CO2 presents environmental, health, and safety hazards in communities targeted for CCS infrastructure. Pipelines can leak or rupture, and contaminate water sources. These risks fall disproportionately on Black, Brown, Indigenous, and low-income communities with a bleak history of environmental racism.

enefits polluters. Nearly 80% of captured carbon is used to pump more oil out of the ground through “enhanced oil recovery.” Industries are using the myth of CCS to justify business-as-usual operations that are dangerous for the climate and communities. Even more public funds into new CCS subsidies for fossil fuel and petrochemical industries will just prop up unworkable models.

eed to fix fossil fuels; we need to ditch them. Instead of capturing carbon to pump it back underground, we should invest in the ground in the first place. And instead of bankrolling CCS, public funds should be boosting sustainable, just energy for the climate crisis, for fossil-dependent workers and communities: phasing out oil, gas, and coal; investing in energy efficiency; supporting combustion renewable energy sources; and protecting forests and other ecosystems that naturally capture and store carbon.

for decision-makers to abandon the dirty, dangerous myth of CCS. We call on you to stop subsidizing CCS. Stop permitting CCS. Stop using CCS to justify climate inaction. And don't pretend you're a climate leader if CCS is part of your climate plan.
