Mr. O'Meara,

The Clearinghouse participates in the OE/AAA review, so projects submitted through the FAA's OE/AAA process are automatically assigned to the DoD for review. Potential DoD concerns are brought up during that review process. I looked up the ASN case numbers you provided, and the Clearinghouse gave a "Non Objection" to all 45 turbines within the project. From the view point of the Clearinghouse, an additional review is not needed. Please let me know if you have any questions regarding this project.

For future reference, informal reviews are recommended early in the siting process. We recognize you may not have definitive plans yet, but early engagement is the key to preventing issues during the formal review process. The goal of the informal review is to identify area of potential impact, and once identified, to refer the proponent to the proper DoD stakeholder to engage in a dialogue.

To request an informal review, please send the following information to the Siting Clearinghouse at osd.dod-siting-clearinghouse@mail.mil. At a minimum, anyone requesting an informal review must provide:

1. Contact Information. This includes the name of the company, vendor or developer, as well as address, city, state and zip code; Project Point of Contact, including first and last name; Contact phone, fax, and email; and Project name, nearest city or county, and state.
2. The geographic location of the project, including its latitude and longitude; and,
3. The nature of the project.

More information regarding the informal review process can be found on the FAQ section of the Clearinghouse website. If you have any additional questions, please feel free to contact me.
