Please receive these comments on EL18-026 Prevailing Winds Docket

This morning I found out when the turbine audible noise and infrasound are the worst. It was foggy. The air is heavy. The noise is loud from the closest turbine (4900 ft) but even worse is the infrasound. It seems to get trapped in the house. I have earaches and pressure buildup in my ears, like being in an airplane. I have to swallow every few seconds to relieve the pressure. My wife got up at 6, got in the car and went to Sioux Falls. I feel so sorry for her, she spent 4 years designing this house and now we have to leave it so sPower can make more money. I talked to a neighbor yesterday who lives outside of the footprint but talks to landowners in the footprint, and the complaints are: too noisy, took away my peace and quiet, they put liens and mortgages on my land I was unaware of, and they didn't fix the driveway or landscaping in the fields lie they said. I hope you saw "Planet of the Humans". It kind of makes a fool out of people that think wind energy is good for anything, because it's not. Someday when you're older you might see through the money and try to take inventory of what you did in this life, good or bad. I'm just one of the people you did harm to and there are thousands more in our state.
