Paul

Where can I see a list of licensed agents like myself?

Paul

As a small coop, we reviewed the sales in So Dakota. That plus the insurance fee is just cost prohibitive to serve these few organic producers at this time . Over $800

We like so many in the region have had a devastating flood , total office destruction . Estimated rebuild is well over 30,000

We have reviewed sales potential and are choosing to suspend work in So Dakota, after the deadline of our current registration. We know your producers are great people but the crops are not the quality we need to fill markets due to the past years weather events and the delayed 2019 crop season to date.

Hope fully that will change but the current facts warrant this action to defer registration at this time.

As of today, our office has not received all your license renewal information. Please be mindful that your current South Dakota grain license will expire at midnight on June 30, 2019. For our office to properly process all licensees we ask that you make a strong attempt to have information to our office by June 1st. If you have not received our license renewal information in the mail or have misplaced it, please contact our office. If you have any questions on the renewal process, please don't hesitate to ask. Thank you for working with us on this matter.

Renewal licensing check list

- Renewal application
- Renewal bond for the 2019-2020 licensing period
- Licensing fee of $275 per location or municipality
- Most recent fiscal yearend financial statement
- Insurance waiver (broker type license only)
- Schedule of rates form (state licensed warehouses only)

Have a great day!

Thanks
