BIlling Name & Address Disclosure

The FCC requires our company, under certain circumstances, to release the Billing Name and Address (BNA) of telephone customers to telecommunications service providers. The main reason for releasing BNA information is to ensure proper billing for collect, third number billed or calling card calls. Our company is required to provide the information to the telecommunications service provider that handled the call, if it is requested by the carrier.

BNA can also be released to telecommunications service providers for other reasons, such as verification for presubscription, servicing your account, to prevent fraud or when you move from one location to another.

If you have an unlisted or non-published telephone number, you have a choice. If you do not want your BNA released by our company, we need affirmative notification from you within 30 days. If you provide us with such notification, your ability to make calling card calls or to receive collect calls or third number billed calls could be denied. The future of Hazen's Jam Sessions

It may be the last Jam Ses-sion – ever. With the dwin-dling number of players and many empty chairs in the audience, it makes it hard to put on a good show.

The Jam Session started in the early summer of 1999. Alice and Shirley Neuberger had come home from Arizona for the summer and thought that if it could work down there every day, it could work up here once a month. We started in the small hall and knew the first time that we would have to move to the large hall. Admission has never been charged, although we asked for donations to we asked for donations to put a quality sound system in the hall. Alice and Shirley hosted the Jam for 10 years until Shirley needed to move to Bismarck to be closer to doctors.

I took the reins in the 11th summer and kept it going for eight more years. I hate to see it end, but it is a lot of work to set everything up and then not get many players and have so many empty chairs.

I have the dates reserved for 2017 and we will see how it goes.

If you want it to keep going, come and bring a friend or two. If you know of perform-ers, encourage them to come and play.

I decided to find more Fall recipes to share. I found a recipe for tender pheasants. I figured there may be hunters bringing home pheasants and different wild game. If you want to try a recipe for preparing pheasant, this one sounds like it should be tasty and moist. And some good old mashed potatoes would go good with the tender pheasant. The second recipe is for wild rice casserole, I thought that could be prepared with the pheasant as a side dish. Both of these recipes are prepared in a slow cooker, so they can cook slowly while you are away from home or busy with other chores or out hunting!

To top off the meal with a hot cup of coffee or tea, I am sharing a recipe for ginger lemon cheesecake bars.

I appreciate it when readers drop off or email me recipes. If any household has a special recipe they make during hunting season, feel free to share it with me (staroffice@bhgnews.com) and I'll share it with our readers.

"What we have done the amount coming in stays the same," said Bjerke. Mercer County Commis-sioner Wes Gunsch asked if he could take the podium. After thanking all the members of council for the tough job they have, he presented that living in the times we're livliving in the times we re inv-ing in, there are points where they need to cut back and lay people off. His question then turned to Beulah's Job Development Authority and what their budget is. It was responded that their budget is approximately $52,000. "is that something that is needed?" asked Gunsch.

Bjerke assured Gunsch that JDA is needed, being one of the lead agencies for a number of businesses. He also mentioned that JDA has a loan with a bank in Beulah and would need to stay in ex istence through the length of

"My motto as long as I've been in public service is com-municate, communicate, and communicate some more. That's one of the complaints I hear from the public. Whatever goes on at JDA Isn't publicized in the paper and I think it should be, it's part of the open record laws," said Gunsch.

Blerke mentioned the paper is there, however he also mentioned the confidentiality of businesses and their loans. Gunsch questioned their mills, which Bjerke explained they get four mills but have never been assessed.

Farm changes: What is a Recon?

Now that we are entering a new Fiscal Year for the federal government, our office can again start processing farm changes. If you know you will be adding to your farming operation in 2017, we can get started with your changes in our office now. This will assure that you get the correct maps and we can have the other documentation in place before the 2017 Crop Year. One of the terms you will hear us say is "recon." This week I want to explain what this means as well as cover the options you have when a new farm is created.

changes in farm ownership or operation take place, a farm reconstitution is necessary. The reconstitution — or recon — is the process of combining or dividing farms or tracts of land based on the farming operation.

The following are the different methods used when doing a farm recon.
Estate Method. The division of bases, allotments and quotas for a parent farm among heirs in settling an estate. Designation of Landowner Method. This may be used when: 1) part of a farm is sold or ownership is transferred; 2) an entire farm is sold to two or more persons; 3) farm ownership is transferred to two or more persons; 4) part of a tract is sold or ownership is trans-ferred; 5) a tract is sold to two or more persons; or 6) tract ownership is transferred to two or more persons. In order to use this method, the land sold much have been quant for at ship is transferred to two or must have been owned for at least three years or a waiver granted, and the buyer and seller must sign a memoran-dum of understanding.

DCP Cropland Method. The division of bases in the same proportion that the DCP cropland for each resulting tract relates to the DCP cropland on the parent tract.
Default Method. The division of bases for a parent farm with each tract maintaining the bases attributed to the tract level when the reconstitution is initiated in the system.

As always, feel free to stop into the Oliver County FSA office If you have any questions, or call 794-8725, ext. 2.

Moments of Reflection

Will you be at the family reunion?

Genesis 46:26-34

Moses records for us the first account of a family reunion. Sixty-six people, livestock and personal possessions traveled over three hundred miles from Bethel in Canaan to Goshen in Egypt. I wonder if any of the grandchildren asked, "Are we there yet?" or "When will we get there?" Maybe the problem was who drank all the water? How long did it take? Scripture does not tell us. God revealed to Jacob that his descendants would return to Canaan.

When Jacob and Joseph were reunited in Egypt what a great family reunion they had oseph we are told hugged his father for a long time and wept. What joy, the family was back together. The lost was found. The prodigal had returned. Joseph considered dead was alive. All this and more had to be the way Jacob felt and was thinking as he embraced his son for the first time in a long.

long time. What took place between Jacob and Joseph was a theme of Jesus. He told the parable of "The Lost Sheep," "The Lost Coin," and "The Prodigal Son," Luke 15. Jesus told how there is great rejoicing in heaven over one who comes to except the Lord as his personal Lord and Scripture tells us in Romans 3:23 that, "All have sinned." Romans 3:10 says, "There is no one righteous, not even one." John in his gospel in the third chapter the sixteenth verse that if we believe in Jesus we will have ever lasting life." John in his letter to the church said, in I John 1:9, "If we confess our sin He is faithful and just to forgive us and cleanse us from all unrighteousness." When we come to the Lord what a home coming there will be.

All this reflects what John recorded in Revelation of the great multitudes praising and glorifying God and the Lamb who was slain that we could have eternal life. Revelation 19:6-7 says, "... Hallelujah! For our Lord God Almighty reigns. Let us rejoice and be glad and give him glory!"

This fall and holiday season there will be many gather-ings we attend of families and friends. What a great time of rejoicing and celebrating will be had by all that attend even seeing those returning home from military deployment. What a greater time of rejoicing will be had when we gather around the throne in heaven with our Heavenly Father. Oh, believer. will your friends, classmates and family members be there? or will they be left out? As the Country and Western gospel song asks, "Will the Circle be Unbroken?" Will you be at the greatest family reunion of all time as we gather around the throne of God?

Edge of Chaos

By ALLAN TINKER

Newspapers in print or online

Since I was old enough to read, which I learned to do by a kerosene lantern in the farm kitchen, I have enjoyed newspapers. I enjoyed the photos, the ads, the crossword puzzles, the kid's page, the cartoons, the recipes, the grain and livestock reports, the various announcements and the case with which I could find them in the printed copies.

the ease with which I could find them in the printed copies.
One of my earliest literary thrills was discovering the carefully collected newspaper clippings of the Lindbergh baby. It was a connection with history, found in my own house, clipped by a grandparent who was also Norwegian.
I usually choose to read all

I usually choose to read all local papers in print, going online only for those too far away to research anyway but that way.

that way.

My grandmother wrote for the McLean County official newspaper, which was the Washburn Leader in her day. She was proud of bringing news of the latest wedding, new baby, social event or relatives visiting to the readers. In the days of scarce dollars, with the added care of my grandfather who had multiple sclerosis and died way too soon, she counted on the dollar or two she received for the many the many the second for this work.

As I grew older, I valued reading news I could count upon, written by someone whose name might be familiar to those around me, names we heard on the local radio shows a constinct when one of the country of the count shows or sometimes, when one would speak at our school or an important public event. They were respected. And trusted.

Mark me naïve, but I trusted the written word, except when I knew it was fiction. Online stuff is have to real.

I knew it was fiction. Online stuff is hard to tell, sometimes; you do not really know if the writer is who or what they say, excepting those who write officially for newspapers.

Trust was a big word for me, in the formation of fact, reason and being dependable. I learned many a hard lesson over the years, both in written words and spoken words, the latter often coming with a smile and soft voice and no credibility what so ever. Then the learning became part of life, learning about myself and my weaknesses and gullibility that allowed me to believe what was false, exaggerated or just pure con.

Newspapers, at least the credible ones, stand behind credible ones, stand behind what appears on their pages. They do their best to tell people's stories as they were told to the writer. Quotation marks the exact word of the person interviewed, the other rands out the weather best. words are the reporters best interpretation of what was said and why. There is a mighty big difference.

Public meetings are covered with an eye for things said without backup of records, things that just do not quite seem to fit, excuses given for seem to fit, excuses given for lack of information or promised backup that never materializes. A once burned, twice shy philosophy and lessons take an angry reader or a kind and more educated reporter to help nore educated reporter to help a reporter learn.

Newspapers and other such periodicals are the hallmark of our freedom. We need to know that what was put out there was the best faith effort, there was the best faith effort, the uncensored expression of a truth, no matter how uncomfortable it might be to many. Without the written word, on paper or online, of those who report small, large, local and foreign news, we are prone to be at the merby of the evils in the world, and the public deserves better. (They deserve the best we have to give them. In addition, they put their names to what hey write!

"Cowboy Up" hit $10,000 mark at Richardton

By Dori Hauck

An overnight stop in Richardton tipped the "Cowboy Up: Journey for a Cure" over their $10,000 fundraising goal.

Cowboy Up is an annual event hosted by Bruce and Carol Van Den Einde and Scott Olerud. What started out as a day-long event in McLeod, ND this year expanded into a 16-day, 373 mile trail ride.

Bruce, Carol and Scott along with Kevin Schultz rode across the state of North Dakota beginning September 9 in Moorhead, MN. Scott's sisters Pegsy Olerud McMahon, St. Joe, MO and Cathy Olerud Bruce, Camano Island, WA teamed up as self-described "Wagon Master and the Side Kick".

The sisters drove the trailers, campers and were there to organize along the way. The ride concluded Saturday, September 24 at Buffalo Gap, ND.

After an approximately 25 mile ride each day, the riders and horses would take the evenings off at 16 different towns along the way.

The horses included Quest, Curly, Buster, Echo and Vegas. They rode through the sun, wind and rain and each should be recognized for covering the 373 mile ride

Local riders were welcome to join in at any time, at any town to increase awareness for cancer prevention and cure. "There is not a family anymore that hasn't been touched by cancer" said Bruce.

Scott said after two weeks on the trail, somewhere between Hebron and Richardton, a vehicle pulled up alongside the riders. A few questions later and hearing Bruce, Carol and Scott's story, the driver donated a $100 bill toward their efforts. "Increasing awareness supporting those with cancer, and remembering those who are no longer with us, that is why we ride" Scott concluded.

During their overnight stop in Richardton, the Richardton Saddle Club opened up the rodeo grounds providing a place for the horses to eat and sleep. Cheers and Beers wielcomed the riders with a meal and opportunity to hear their story. You could make a donation and there was Cowboy Up merchandise for sale.

A generous contribution from Cheers and Beers for $1,000 along with other donations and merchandise sales, the Cowboy Up: Journey for a Cure passed their $10,000 fundraising goal in Richardton, All donations benefit the Roger Maris Cancer Center in Fargo.

You can learn more about their journey at www.cowboyupride.com or on their Facebook page Cowboy Up Ride Against Cancer.

These men and women, all members of "Cowboy Up: Journey for a Cure" hit the $10,000 mark in Richardton recently during an overnight stay at the Richardton Saddle Club arena. The group rode their horses from McLeod, ND to Buffalo Gap, ND.

DEAN MEYER AND LINDA KITTILSON

STAND BY THEIR CRITICISM OF MIKE SCHATZ FOR VOTING AGAINST FIRST RESPONDERS
IN THE 2015 SESSION!

Mike Schatz is trying to intimidate and threaten with his most recent ad, but he's got nothing to stand on because he FLIP-FLOPPED on the same bill. The worst part is, he voted wrong and against first responders when it counted the most.

You see, Mike Schatz was against first responders after he was for them. In January, he voted for (HB 1317), a bill that failed to pass the House, but in March, when it really counted, Schatz voted against first responder coverage in an identical bill, (SB 2256), a bill that passed the Senate with an overwhelming bipartisan majority. The second bill could have gone to the Governor for his signature, but when it counted, Mike voted against first responders. That's the truth and no matter how much Mike threatens us, the record doesn't lie.

When lives are at stake,

Dean Meyer and Linda Kittilson will put our first responders, firefighters and volunteers first.

Dakota and the geography of racism hen the Army Corps of Engineers drew up its development plans for the Missouri River in the 1940s and 1950s, its officers repeatedly traveled from their headquarters in Omaha, Neb., to Pierre and Bismarck to consult with the governors, senators and business leaders of North and South Dakota.

At the time, the upper echelon of the corps consisted entirely of middle-aged white males, as did the po-litical and economic elite of the

Behind closed doors, these men collectively agreed to build five of the world's largest earthen dams at locations, and to heights, harmful to the interests of the Missouri Valley's Native American inhabitants.

After the dams went into the river, and the reservoirs filled to capacity, a string of Native American communities from Fort Thompson, S.D., to Sanish, N.D., sank beneath the dark waters of the Missouri.

Not surprisingly, the Pick-Sloan Plan spared from inundation the offreservation communities of Chamberlain, Fort Pierre, Pierre, Bismarck and Williston.

Native Americans did not accept the loss of their Missouri Valley bot-tornlands and communities without a fight. In the 1940s, the tribal council at Fort Berthold tried to stop the con-

When that goal appeared unat-tainable because North Dakota's federal and state officials fully supported the dam's construction, the council attempted to persuade the state's leaders to alter the dam's location and height so as to minimize the amount of land inundated by the dam's planned reservoir.

most importantly, the racism of white

People often think of racism as a set of beliefs or behaviors. But it's more that.

In the Dakotas, racism is a geography; its imprint is upon the land – and waterscape. The corps' big dams and reservoirs along the Missouri are clear representations of institutional racism and of White America's centuries-old attempt to subjugate Native America.

Look at any map of the Dakotas and it will reveal in contour lines and place names the record of White America's racist policies toward Native Americans.

In the present dispute over the Dakota Access Pipeline, the key players have assumed historical, time-

Today's North Dakota is largely un by a cabal of conservative, middle-aged white men. Apparently those men, in consultation with the corps and the heads of Energy Transfer Crude Oil Co., insisted that the pipeline not cross the Missouri where a future oil leak could threaten the water supplies and quality of life of Bismarck's predominately white res-

Consequently, the corps and Energy Transfer agreed that the pipeline should cross the Missouri near the northern boundary of the Standing Rock Reservation.

That crossing point ensures that if the future pipeline ruptures and pours oil into the Missouri, Native Americans will pay the steepest so-cial, environmental and economic costs – as they did when the corps constructed its Missouri River dams decades ago.
The Native Americans, like their predecessors in the 1940s and 1950s, are protesting the corps' plans and the threat those plans pose not only to their water supplies but also their sacred sites.

But as in the past, the white-male dominated order along the Missouri possesses the wealth, legal tools and institutions to stymic the Native Americans' efforts.

Although the Obama Adminison's Justice Department recently ordered a pause in the project's construction, there still exists a good chance the pipeline will be built near the Standing Rock Reservation.

And if that happens, the pipeline will be one more sordid example of the geography of racism so prevalent in the Dakotas in place names, dam sites, reservoir levels and shrunken reservation boundaries.

Now Amnesty International USA is demanding answers, in a letter to Morton County Sheriff Kyle Kirchmeier, who has repeatedly claimed that the protectors are violent, even as his police force stood by during the attacks on unarmed protectors: The human-rights body also touches on the trespassing charges levied against journalist Amy Goodman, who recorded the events for Democracy Now!

28 September 2016

Dear Sheriff Kyle Kirchmeier:

Following the protests that took place at a Dakota Access Pipeline construction site on 3 Scotember, we are writing to ask you to investigate the use of force by private contrac-tors, remove blockades and discontinue the use of riot gear by Morton County Sheriff's deputies when policing protests in order to facilitate the right to peaceful protests in accor-dance with international law and stan-

While the North Dakota Private Investigation and Security Board is reviewing the use of dogs by private security personnel during the events on 3 September, it is the obligation of the Morton County Sheriff to review the actions taken by private security in both the use of dogs and OC Spray against individuals at this site.

Even though individuals trespassed on to private property in order to stop the destruction of potential cultural sites, law enforcement, in its obligation to facilitate peaceful protest, has a duty to protect peaceful protesters and not use the unlawful acts of a few as a pretext to restrict or impede the exercise of fundamental rights of a majority. The Morton County Sheriff should review the unnecessary use of force by security personnel on this day.

In relation to the actions that took place on this day, Amnesty Interna-tional USA has written to Morton County State's Attorney, Allen Coppy, calling on his office to drop charges of criminal trespass against Democracy Now! Journalist Amy Goodman. Miss Goodman was acting in her role as a journalist/reporter when she crossed onto private property in order to report on the actions of the protesters, construction crew and private security firm.

Her trespass on to this property was clearly related to, even essential to, effectively carrying out her role of covering the protest and making information about it available to the public. We are calling on your office to support that request to the Morton County State's Attorney's office. A copy of the letter has been attached.

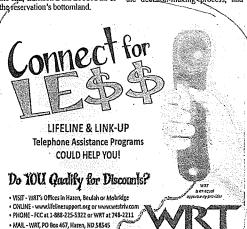

Lastly, we are calling on your office to refrain from outfitting officers in riot gear when policing of the Dakota Access Pipeline protests unless strictly necessary.
On 13 September 2016, after making arrests of at least 20 individuals who were trespassing on private land in order to partake in non-violent direct action against the pipeline, images that were circulated from the protest site showed Morton County Sheriff's officers outfitted in riot gear despite the lack of violence by pro-

More recent images from ongoing protests at the construction site show officers outfitted in similar gear, equipped with assault rifles and using armored vehicles to police protests.

Fall Colors

In autumn the leaves of many broadleaf shrubs and trees change color and we get to enjoy their beauty. The mixture of yellow and orange with a touch of red and purple is the result of chemical processes that take place in trees as the seasons change from summer to winter.

During the spring and summer the leaves serve as factories where most of the foods necessary for the tree's growth are manufactured. This food-making process takes place in the leaf in numerous cells containing chlorophyll, which gives the leaf its green pigment color. Chlorophyll transforms sunlight into energy and combines carbon dioxide and water making sugars and starches causing trees to

Besides chlorophyll leaves contain carotenes and xanthophyll which contain yellow and orange pigments. These colors are masked most of the year by great amounts of green coloring. During late summer and early fall the connection of the leaf at the branch slowly changes as a layer of cells slowly dries up stopping the flow of water and nutrients to and from the leave. The clogged vessels hinder the making of the green chlorophyll. When chlorophyll production is slowed or stopped, the leaves lose their green color. As the length of daylight and temperature, decrease, chlorophyll breaks down, the green color disappears, and the yellow to orange colors become visible and give the leaves part of their fall splendor.

Cottonwood, ash and elm show only yellow colors, others like many oaks, display mostly browns. At the same time other chemical changes may occur, which form additional colors through the development of red anthocyanin pigments. All these colors are due to the mixing of varying amounts of the chlorophyll residue and other pigments in the leaf during the fall season. Some mixtures give rise to the reddish and purplish fall colors of trees such as maples, dogwoods and sumacs.

Temperature, light, and water supply have an influence on the degree and the duration of fall color. Low temperatures above freezing will favor anthocyanin formation producing bright reds in maples. The brightest colors are formed during bright sunny days rather than dull cloudy days. The richest colors occur when there is a quick change in temperature from high summer to lower autumn temperatures. Many leaves do not turn colors before the first frost. However, early frost will weaken the brilliant red color. Rainy and/or overcast days tend to increase the intensity of fall colors. The best time to enjoy the autumn colors is on a clear, dry, and cool day.

2016 Custer State Park Buffalo Roundup

On Friday morning, Sept. 30, a few dozen cowboys will put on their boots and saddle up their horses. Custer State Park employees will arise before dawn. And thousands from across the state, country and world will gather, all to continue a 51-year tradition.

The Buffalo Roundup is an experience unlike any other. You can feel the ground shake as over 1,000 half-ton creatures stampede across the prairie. Watching the few brave riders drive the beasts to their destination is quite incredible. Witnessing the buffalo's power and speed from such a short distance creates a feeling of being back in the Old West.

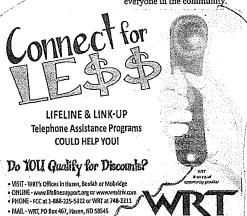

At one time, there were about 60 million buffalo roaming North America, but that number decreased to less than 2,000 in the early twentieth century. Although population levels are nowhere near the historical peak, South Dakota buffalo have made a comeback from their near extinction, thanks in part to Custer State Park.

Riders will round up a herd of 1,300 buffalo on Sept. 30, and it will take about four days to work the herd. Volunteers will vaccinate and brand the calves, check the cows for pregnancy and then identify 200 buffalo for sale in November.

To be eligible for Lifeline assistance, an applicant or subscriber, one of their dependents or their household must participate in one or more of the following programs: Medicaid; Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP, formerly Food Stamps); Temporary Aid to Needy Families (TANF); National School Lunch (NSL) free lunch program; Supplemental Security Income (SSI); Federal Public Housing Assistance; or Low Income Housing Energy Assistance. Individuals whose household income is at or below 135% of the Federal Poverty Guidelines are also eligible for Lifeline assistance. Toll blocking at no charge and reduced deposits are also available. Additional Tribal Lifeline and Tribal Link Up support is available to those qualifying individuals living on Tribal Lands. Tribal Lifeline/Link Up provides for additional telephone services discounts, and in addition to the previously cited programs, for those individuals residing on Tribal Lands, participation in the Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA) general assistance program, Head Start, Food Distribution Program on Indian Reservations or Tribal TANF qualifies them for this support. Only eligible consumers may enroll in the Lifeline program. Lifeline applicants must present documentation demonstrating eligibility either through participation in one of the qualifying federal assistance programs or through income-based means. Lifeline recipients are required to recertify their eligibility every year. The Lifeline program is limited to one benefit per household, consisting of either wireline or wireless service.
